Overview and Objectives

This graduate-level course is intended as an introduction to Latin American politics from a comparative politics view. The papers and chapters will draw from what call 'the core' that defines this important area of research.

Course Learning Objectives

Upon successful completion of this course, you will be able to:

- Acquire an understanding of the main democratization and development theories in Latin America.
- Use the comparative method and analysis in the political science literature.
- Consume 'critically' the Latin American politics literature.
- Produce original research relevant to the subfield.

Requirements

In this course we will cover the key concepts and theoretical debates in a very large sub-field in political science. Students will be expected to complete the required readings each week, attend the seminar, participate in class discussions and take careful notes. You will also be required to serve as a discussant a number TBA of times. Basically, your job will be to comment on your colleagues' reaction papers with specific references to the material. Two papers at the middle and end of the road will also be required. Based on what I see from our weekly discussion, I will provide the topics. Suggestions are welcomed.

Evaluation

- Weakly reaction papers - do not write a reaction paper when you serve as a discussant: 40 %.
- Two research papers: 40 %.
- Participation: 20 %.

Academic Integrity

In accordance with Rutgers University policy on Academic Integrity, you are expected to fully comply with the school's policies. Please see this link.

Policy on Audits

You can audit my course. However, I expect you to participate and complete all requirements.

Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities who require accommodation should review the following statement from the Office of Disability Services link.

Office Hours

I have an open-doors policy, feel free to stop by my office at any time. However, you might want to minimize the risks that I am not there. I advise you then to schedule time with me using my automatic scheduler. I think fixed office hours do not work because ... well, they are fixed. I prefer flexibility. Hence, you can see me any day/time that's available during the week. Do not send me a reminder as I will receive an alert: If the time spot is available, I am happy to see you there. Please follow this link.

Cell Phones

Make sure your cell phones are turned OFF before entering class.
